Dan Beck is the corporate spokesman for Boeing Defense, Space & Security (BDS), serving as the primary contact for the news media, and participating in crafting and delivery of key messaging for reputation management, risk mitigation, and crisis communications. At Boeing, Beck has also served as director of communications for Boeing Launch & Satellite Systems (L&SS), and media relations manager and lead environmental communicator for Rocketdyne. Beck built his media relations skills in private practice including years of experience serving as regional political communications advisor for the Republican National Committee, communications director for the California Republican Party, and as press secretary for congressmen in Ohio and Virginia following the management of successful election campaigns. He is a graduate of California State University, Long Beach, and holds a Masters' degrees in political science and writing from the George Washington University and the University of Southern California respectively.

Noshing with Notables provides an opportunity for George Washington University students to meet and engage with successful policy practitioners in an informal setting over lunch. Our "Notables" are public policy experts from the government, private sector, academia, and non-profit entities.

The George Washington University Regulatory Studies Center aims to raise awareness of regulations' effects and improve regulatory policy through research, education, and outreach.
