Shawne McGibbon currently serves as the General Counsel for the Administrative Conference of the United States, an independent agency that provides recommendations to the federal government.

Ms. McGibbon is an expert in administrative law and the regulatory process, and is an experienced federal government manager. She has worked in the area of regulatory reform and has supported government policies that enhance the U.S. economy for most of her career. For 16 years, she held various positions at the Office of Advocacy, an independent office housed within the U.S. Small Business Administration. Prior to joining the Office of Advocacy, Ms. McGibbon worked on Capitol Hill as a senior legislative assistant for Rep. Albert R. Wynn. Early in her career, she worked as an associate in Mr. Wynn's law practice, and on his legislative staff in the Maryland State Senate. Ms. McGibbon received a Bachelor of Arts degree from Georgetown University in 1986 (majoring in Government), and a law degree from the George Washington University National Law Center in 1989.

Noshing with Notables provides an opportunity for George Washington University students to meet and engage with successful policy practitioners in an informal setting over lunch. Our "Notables" are public policy experts from the government, private sector, academia, and non-profit entities.

The George Washington University Regulatory Studies Center aims to raise awareness of regulations' effects and improve regulatory policy through research, education, and outreach.
