Boris Bershteyn was designated by President Obama as Acting Administrator of the Office of Information and Regulatory Affairs (OIRA) within the Office of Management and Budget (OMB) from August 2012 until March 2013. He has served as the General Counsel of OMB since July 2011 and as the Deputy General Counsel of OMB from 2009 to 2010. Between his tours at OMB, he served as Special Assistant to the President and Associate White House Counsel, with responsibility for legal issues in regulatory, economic, health, and environmental policy. He also serves on the Council of the Administrative Conference of the United States, to which he was appointed by President Obama in 2011. Before joining OMB, he worked as a lawyer for the law firms Skadden, Arps, Slate, Meagher & Flom and Wachtell, Lipton, Rosen & Katz. He also served as a law clerk to Justice David H. Souter of the U.S. Supreme Court and Judge José A. Cabranes of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit. He holds a B.A. in Economics and Political Science from Stanford University and a J.D. from Yale Law School.

Noshing with Notables provides an opportunity for George Washington University students to meet and engage with successful policy practitioners in an informal setting over lunch. Our “Notables” are public policy experts from the government, private sector, academia, and non-profit entities.

The George Washington University Regulatory Studies Center aims to raise awareness of regulations’ effects and improve regulatory policy through research, education, and outreach.
