

Quick Facts:

- Full-time policy analyst in the Office of Information & Regulatory Affairs (OIRA)
- GW Trachtenberg School of Public Policy and Public Administration MPA '15
- GW Regulatory Studies Center Fellow, Summer 2014

Joe was bitten by the regulatory policy bug while getting his MPA from the GW Trachtenberg School. Following his successful completion of the core regulatory comment course, Joe was selected for the GW Regulatory Studies Fellowship opportunity to spend the summer of 2014 working as a policy analyst in OIRA. He found the experience so rewarding—and coworkers were so impressed with him—that he was offered and accepted a full-time position with the agency upon graduation.

Joe's hard work and his GW experience have prepared him well for the demanding job of an OIRA regulatory policy analyst. The challenging coursework involved in his Regulatory Policy concentration, combined with the invaluable on-the-job experience as a Regulatory Studies Fellow, have equipped Joe well for his new position providing what President Obama has called “a dispassionate and analytical second opinion on agencies actions.”

Congratulations, Joe!