

Quick Facts:

- Financial Services Policy Advisor at Third Way
- Previously, Financial Services staffer for Rep. Scott Peters (CA-52)
- MPP (2013) from the GW Trachtenberg School of Public Policy and Public Administration with a concentration in regulatory policy and a focus in financial services
- GW RSC Fellow in the Office of Information and Regulatory Affairs (OIRA) (Summer 2012)

Tanner started his MPP at Trachtenberg in 2010 knowing that he had a passion for politics, policy and Wall Street, but not knowing exactly how he was going to tie all three together. With the support and guidance from Trachtenberg faculty, specifically Susan Dudley, Tanner found courses that fit his passions and created his own concentration in regulatory policy and financial services including an RSC fellowship at OIRA.

After graduation in 2013, Tanner continued on the path of public service working on Capitol Hill. While there, Tanner worked for several members of Congress, most recently Rep. Scott Peters (D-CA), where his portfolio included financial services, housing, tax, and small business. In addition to working for Rep. Peters' personal office, Tanner volunteered on the Congressman's successful 2014 re-election campaign.

Recently, Tanner took a new position at the centrist think tank, Third Way, where he is a Policy Advisor on their Economic Program doing research on financial services, securities law and housing policy. Tanner has been published covering topics ranging from the Consumer Financial Protection Bureau to the Federal Housing Administration.

Tanner has no doubt that his experience at TSPPPA and opportunities like the RSC Fellowship at OIRA led him to where he is today. In his free time, Tanner enjoys spending time with his dog Ginger and newly engaged fiancée who is currently a 3L at Georgetown Law School. Tanner is also an avid runner, and loves to golf and fly fish whenever he gets the chance.
